1. Read the following passage carefully.

- 1 Fire is a necessary evil. It is a boon as well as a curse. It has made our life comfortable, but we cannot touch it. It was the first great invention made by early man.
- 2 Early man didn't know how to make fire and then use it for cooking. But he must have seen the destructive power of fire, lightning and volcanoes. He was afraid of it. What is fire ? Fire is, infact, the result of a chemical reaction. The air has oxygen, while fuels have carbon and hydrogen. When the two combine, energy is created in the form of heat and light.
- 3 Three things are needed to make fire – fuel, oxygen and heat. The common fuels are wood, coal, gas and petrol. When we blow on burning paper, it bursts into flame. Fuel and oxygen do not make fire. They need heat. A lighted match provides that heat. Every fuel begins to burn at a particular temperature.
- 4 Fire is a good servant but a bad master. It is useful as long as it is under control. Every year thousands of homes and trees are damaged by fire. Forest fire destroys trees and kills people.
- 5 Fire can be put out in three ways. We can take away the fuel or stop oxygen from reaching the burning material. The third way is to bring down the temperature below the flashpoint. Remove the hot air around the burning candle, and it will go out. Water also lowers the temperature and puts out the fire.
- 6 Some fires cannot be put out with water. Oil fire is one such example. The oil floats to the top of water and continues to burn as well as spread. Electrical fire also can't be controlled with water. It is fought by using carbon dioxide.

- 7 On the whole, we have learnt well to control fire and make good use of it in everyday life. Long ago there were no firemen. The people used to bring and throw bucketfuls of water on the flames. Now there are laws to install fire extinguishers in every big building. There are fire brigades in every town. Trained firefighters use their skills like cutting off power supply, pulling down weak walls, spraying water to bring fire under control. They are also trained to provide first aid to injured people.
- 8 Fire is rightly worshipped in many parts of the world because it helped early man to keep off animals and settle down in safe places.
- 1.1 Based on your reading of the passage, complete the following sentences : $1 \times 7 = 7$
- According to the author, fire was the first _____.
 - Although early man was not aware of making fire, he must have seen its _____.
 - Fire is useful as long as _____.
 - Oil fire cannot be put out with water because the oil floats _____.
 - Electrical fire can be controlled by _____.
 - When there were no firemen the people used to control fire by _____.
 - Since fire helped early man to settle down in safe places it _____ in many parts of the world.

- 1.2 Find words/phrases from the passage that mean the same as the following : $1 \times 3 = 3$
- visible discharge of electricity in atmosphere (para 2)
 - temperature at which a vapour ignites (para 5)
 - device used to put out fires (para 7)

2. Read the passage given below and complete the statements that follow by writing the correct options : $1 \times 5 = 5$

Alexander the Great stood with his army on the shore of the Tigris River. He and his men had marched north from Tyre, crossing acres of blackened land. Darius III had his men burn the long wheat grass that had been growing there. He had hoped to slow the advance of Alexander's mighty fighting force.

Darius' strategy did little to delay the Greek forces. They prepared now to ford the Tigris. They knew that Darius III and the Persian warriors were camped nearby on the plain of Gaugamela. They remained unaware of Darius' newest tactic.

When Alexander and his men reached the plain of Gaugamela, they found that the ground had been made level. The Persian chariots stood ready to attack. Darius expected his scythed chariots to propel themselves forcefully into the Greek forces, with their curved blades ripping at the flesh of horses and men.

The chariots began their rapid drive towards the army of Alexander. The Greek general, having made a quick assessment of the situation, ordered the ranks of the Greek fighters to split apart. This manoeuvre left the Persians moving forward, without having anyone to mow down. Because they travelled at great speed, the Persians could not turn around. Caught between enemy lines, many Persian chariot drivers fell victim to the spears and arrows of the Greeks.

Still, Darius was not ready to surrender. He spotted places where his men could outflank the Greeks. Some enemy units met the fate that Darius had intended, that of being run over by the Persian chariots. None of this seemed to faze Alexander.

The Greek general ordered the cavalry to form a wedge. The point of the wedge charged directly at Darius. The Persian King fled, leading to a collapse of whatever resistance he had managed to muster. Alexander the Great again emerged the victor.

- The celebration of Veterans Day is held on November 11th every year in the United States. This day is set aside to honour and remember the military men and women who have served America, in any war and during peace time.

Veterans Day was first called Armistice Day. Armistice Day signalled the end of World War I. World War I was fought from 1914 – 1918. Thirty-five countries fought in World War I. An Armistice was signed on the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, and this meant the war was over. Many countries were thrilled to hear that the war was over and that their soldiers would be coming home.

An unidentified American soldier was buried in Arlington National Cemetery on a hillside overlooking the Potomac River at 11.00 a.m. on November 11, 1921. This grave is called the "Tomb of the Unknown Soldier". On the same day, a soldier from France and a soldier from England were also buried in their own countries, to give special recognition to the end of the war. In 1954, the U.S. Congress changed the name of the day from Armistice day to Veterans Day.

The site of the "Tomb of the Unknown Soldier" is where the U.S. government holds its annual Veterans Day ceremonies. Ceremonies are also held in many schools and churches on Veterans Day.
